The other specific restrictions intended to limit the total number coming to the final contests at the University, remain. The University would gladly welcome more high school students to those annual contests, but it is physically impossible to make adequate provision for their entertainment. The committee hopes that school authorities will appreciate this and give their hearty cooperation in the working out of satisfactory rules and regulations. NEWS AND PERSONALS The Record acknowledges with thanks a note of encouragement and appreciation from Dr. J. E. Boyle, now Professor of Agricultural Economics in Cornell University and formerly Professor of Economics here at the University of North Dakota. of Kauai, Territory of Hawaii. She writes that she is enjoying her work and the whole situation in our distant island possession. The following are absent on leave from the University this year, doing graduate work toward a higher degree or otherwise coming in touch with the work of their department as it is carried on in other and larger centers: Professor Nell Martindale of the Department of Physical Education for Women is in Columbia University; Professor E. A. Menk of the Department of Classical Languages and Professor E. H. Wilcox of the Department of Music are both in the University of Iowa; and Professor Marian Stephenson of the department of home economics is spending the year in Paris on the art side of the work of that department. John F. Como, of 18,...
