There actually was a man - Robert Paterson - who from pure love of noble lives spent his years in endeavoring to perpetuate their memory. Accompanied by a little white horse, he was wont to visit all the church yards in the Highlands of Scotland, search among the grass until he found the stones that marked the graves of the worthies and then with chisel and hammer clean the stones and cut deeper into them the names of these worthies - men who had lived and perhaps suffered in the cause of pure religion. People called him Old Mortality, and it was no infrequent sight in traversing a moor to see him, with his pony browsing at his side, hard at work, making some deserted grave stone of the wilds tell again its story of Christian service. Motives of sincere devotion induced him to dedicate many years...
