Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Co-Operation In a recent speech Mr. Balfour says that the question our nation needs to study is not that of distribution but that of production. In a country producing wealth to the amount of 1,450,000,000 in a year, which, equally distributed, would give an income of 165 per annum to every group of five, such a statement appears somewhat belated. We may claim to have solved the problem of how to produce enough, and the question which confronts us, as we compare this wealth with a submerged tenth, a class constantly on the verge of Starvation, workers whose means of existence is precarious and a system of trade which constantly allows whole industries to be overwhelmed with destruction, is how to bring distribution into line with the productive capacity of our people. This demand is not a new one; it was voiced by James Stuart Mill, by Robert Owen, by Charles Kingsley, and Arnold Toynbee; it is the seed from which sprung Trades Unionism, the Socialist movement, the Temperan agitation, the Friendly Societies, and the...
